Ceremonies held indoors

Diplomas presented to WSHS graduates

Rain forced 173 graduating seniors to receive their diplomas indoors Sunday afternoon, but failed to dampen the 101st baccalaureate commencement exercises at Washington Senior High School.

The high school commencement exercises are traditionally held outdoors at Gardner Park Stadium, but Sunday's rainstorm moved the ceremonies to the school's gymnasium.

Washington Senior High School Principal Maurice A. Pfeifer presented the 101st graduating class to District Superintendent Edwin M. Nestor, who distributed diplomas along with Robert N. Highfield, president of the Washington C.H. Board of Education. Before passing out the diplomas, a scripture reading and sermon were given by the Rev. Stan Toler, Pastor of the Gregg Street Church of Christ in Christian Union.

Robyne Jayne Lambert gave the salutatorian's address and Rebecca Louise Wheat, whose 4.0 grade point average topped the class, gave the valedictorian's address.

Senior class president John Howard Walker then gave the traditional farewell address.

The Washington Senior High School band under the direction of Dennis Wollam provided the processional and the recessional music. The Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, delivered the invocation and the benediction.

Before the diplomas were presented, Thomas K. Rankin, the assistant principal of the high school, announced the 39 seniors who had received scholarships worth over $60,000.

The list included:

Steve Baughn received a Fayette County Grange No. 2675 scholarship. He will attend Ohio State University.

Instant registration fought

Ohio voter law heads to courts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Members of both political parties are now expecting the courts to settle the big skirmish over a newly enacted law that would let Ohioans register and vote the same day.

Majority Democrats, in what nearly resembled a circus atmosphere, stood united last week to pass it over the vetoes of GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes.

There were night riders, a chartered airplane, and some other unusual twists that set the stage for what looms as a Republican attempt to repeal the law in a statewide referendum this fall.

Because Ohio's elected representatives have to adhere to their own laws, or those of their earlier counterparts, a lot of the maneuvering involved legal deadlines.

That's why House Speaker Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, dispatched the newly enacted bill and overridden vetoes at night to GOP Secretary of State Ted W. Brown at his home in suburban Columbus, just minutes after the House completed action.

The reason for the rush—similar to a Democratic maneuver in the Senate on May 19—was technical. It is best briefly explained as an attempt to put a wrench into the anticipated move to repeal both instant and permanent registration on the November ballot.

Republicans say they hate the measure, and claim it would invite election fraud, while Democrats assert the GOP is convinced many new voters attracted by the bill would turn to the Democratic Party. There are elements of truth in both assertions.

Riffe wanted the House to act the same day the Senate did—on Tuesday, following Rhodes' holiday weekend vetoes.

It takes a three-fifths majority to overturn the governor, and the speaker had exactly that number (60), or none to spare. Democrats control the House 62-37.

He got on the telephone and ordered the absent members—Reps. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, and Paul R. Leonard, D-37 Dayton—to get to the Statehouse at once, and he didn't care "how they did it."

At the same time, the speaker, who otherwise could have adjourned the House in the afternoon, scheduled a Tuesday night floor session to act on the vetoes.

By that time, Leonard and Wilkowski had arrived. Wilkowski later disclosed that he had to charter a private plane to get to Columbus. It cost him $110, he said.

After the session, Riffe ordered House clerks to formalize the new law and take it to Brown's home. The amiable secretary invited them in and they chatted a while, the speaker said. He added that Brown "gave us a receipt."

Democrats in the Senate had sent the bill to Rhodes on May 19 with the ink barely dry. The House, in speeding it to Brown, wanted to keep the clock running to make law take effect as soon as possible. This was part of their plan to preclude or beat the expected statewide referendum.

From there, the story gets more complicated.

Brown, a leading opponent of instant registration, moved to thwart a Democratic effort to give the bill immediate effect.

In the course of legislative consideration, had Democrats placed a $2.3 million allocation of funds into the measure, making it an appropriations bill. Appropriations measures take immediate effect, and are not subject to the referendum process.

Brown, however, ruled that the bill could be divided. He allowed the appropriation to take immediate effect, but placed on the remainder of the bill a regular 90-day effective date. This action also made the rest of the bill subject to a referendum, he said, in his opinion. "We've done this to bills before," he said. Riffe said "I don't think he had the authority to do that."

While studying possible legal action to force Brown to make the whole bill effective, Riffe and other Democrats adhered to their accelerated timetable "just in case."

If the 90-day effective date stands, the bill would take effect Aug. 30.

That's when those seeking the referendum would have to turn over 184,000 valid voter signatures to keep its provisions in abeyance pending a statewide vote in the November election.

Republicans had hoped for some kind of stall on the referendum until next year, to keep Democrats from using the new voting procedure to try to win back the governor's office from Rhodes.

Apparently Democrats, with their legislative speed in starting the clock to run on Rhodes' 10 days to act on the bill, and on the 90 days, if that period is required to lapse before the bill takes effect, won on that point.

Sixty days have to lapse between the time the signatures suspend the newly enacted law, and the time the issue appears on the ballot. The 60 days will run out on Republicans several days before the Nov. 8 election.

Haldeman, Mitchell get word today on prison sentences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their legal avenues all but closed, H.R. Haldeman and John Mitchell are returning to the courtroom of federal Judge John Sirica one final time before going to prison for their Watergate crimes.

The judge planned to tell them today when they must begin serving the 2½-to 8-year prison sentences he imposed Feb. 21, 1975, for their roles in America's biggest political scandal, the Watergate coverup.

Sirica already has told their lawyers that he intends to give Mitchell and Haldeman until June 22 to get their affairs in order. But rules require that the two men be told the date in court.

Next to former President Richard Nixon, who was pardoned for all crimes, they are the biggest fish in the Watergate net and the last to be punished. When the prison gates shut, the five-year anniversary of the Watergate break-in will just have passed and the Special Watergate Prosecution Force will be out of business or nearly so.

The imprisonment of Mitchell and Haldeman will mark the closing of the book on the scandal that caused the only resignation of a president of the United States.

The men have only slender hope of delaying or avoiding their sentences for conspiracy, obstruction of justice and multiple counts of lying under oath. They have asked the Supreme Court to reconsider its denial of their appeal, a plea rarely granted.

Haldeman, 50, and the 63-year-old Mitchell were the iron men of the flawed Nixon administration. None ranked higher.

The austere Haldeman, as chief of staff, exercised power second only to Nixon. He had worked in Nixon political campaigns since 1956 and has said, "I knew Richard Nixon the man and Richard Nixon the president more intimately than any other person. No one else was as totally trusted or as totally knowledgeable."

The dour Mitchell, as attorney general, carried out the law-and-order promises of the two Nixon presidential campaigns he directed. He had been the former president's law partner. He was eight months younger than the president, but acted as Nixon's counselor and political adviser.

Mitchell will be the first attorney general in America's history to be imprisoned.

They were convicted, along with former domestic counselor John Ehrlichman, of what the U.S. Court of Appeals called "a wide-ranging conspiracy designed to impede a grand jury investigation into the break-in at the Democratic National Committee headquarters in the Watergate office building in Washington, D.C., and into other related matters."

Coffee Break . .

MOTORISTS TRAVELING to and from Columbus will not have to detour through Bloomingburg after 2 p.m. Monday.

The bridge on U.S. 62-NE, which has been closed this past week due to structural repairs, was scheduled to open to one lane this afternoon.

The Ohio Department of Transportation reported that the bridge will not be completely opened (to two-lane traffic) for another two or three weeks as workers continue repairs.

GRADUATION ceremonies are presently in the spotlight and 17 area canines have not been left out.

The Paint Valley Kennel Club will hold graduation exercises for its spring dog obedience class of 17 dogs and their owners at 7 p.m. tonight in the fine arts building on the Fayette County Fairgrounds.

MOST Fayette County voters will not go to the polls in Tuesday's primary election simply because there are no issues nor candidates on the ballot.

The only voters in Fayette County who will cast ballots are the 100 or so persons residing in the portion of the Greenfield School District which overlaps into Perry Township. They will vote on two proposed bond issues for the Greenfield school system.

The polls in New Martinsburg open at 6:30 a.m. and close at 7:30 p.m.

Fire memorial service held

SOUTHGATE, Ky. (AP) — A governor, a mayor, a nightclub owner and his faithful employees joined Sunday on a cemetery knoll overlooking the ruins of a nightclub where 161 people perished in a fire.

"I have never in my lifetime been at a place in which my heart has been so broken," recalled Kentucky Gov. Julian Carroll during a memorial service for the victims of the May 28 fire at the Beverly Hills Supper Club.

Carroll, who was at the scene most of the two days following the blaze, talked of the losses suffered by families in many states. Some members of those families braved intermittent showers to gather at the Southgate Cemetery with employees of the once posh supper club, survivors, firemen, police and Salvation Army workers.

Southgate Mayor Ken Paul told them that his small residential city of about 3,500 would never be the same.

"We will never again be able to be an average American city. From now on, the name of Southgate will be linked with smoke and fire and death."

"There is much pain in this city," he concluded. "Now is the period of tears, and we have cried, but we must go on."

Rick Schilling, co-owner of the nightclub located five miles south of Cincinnati, stood on the outskirts of the crowd of several hundred along with several of his longtime employees.

After the service, Schilling broke down and wept with Dottie Eberle, an assistant head hostess. He was led away from the service by the club's chef, Charles Chandler.

For Mrs. Eberle, the memorial service marked a last farewell to the way of life which had been destroyed by the fire.

She was proud that she had been able to save all of her customers who were eating dinner at the club when the fire broke out, but she was also haunted by memories such as having to cover a fellow employee with a tablecloth.

"I've mentally been through hell this week," said the mother of five children. "We were all like a family at Beverly Hills and then in a matter of hours some of them were gone forever."

Mrs. Eberle said nine of the club's 250 employees died in the fire. "I look around today and see people I worked with and longtime customers," she said. "I wanted to go back and see club one more time. It was so beautiful, so beautiful."

"I guess they're right when they say to remember it as it was. But, you know, if they-rebuild again, I'd go back and work there in a minute."

Congress studies major issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Revisions of the nation's housing, community development and clean air programs, and easing of restrictions on political activity by federal employes top this week's agenda in Congress.

The Senate, returning from a week-long Memorial Day recess, takes up a 4.8 billion housing and community development authorization bill today.

The measure would extend to Sept. 30, 1980, the government's program of block grants to states and localities for community development, with a first-year authorization of $4 billion in spending. It also would revise the formula for distribution of the money to give higher priority to cities with a high percentage of older housing.

The bill also provides for a one-year extension of basic federal housing programs, including a $1.24 billion authorization for housing assistance to lower income families through rent supplements and through public housing. The additional spending would fund an estimated 400,000 new federally assisted housing units.

In recognition of inflation in the cost of homes, mortgage limits for Federal Housing Administration loan insurance would increase from $45,000 to $60,000, and down payment requirements for homes costing more than $25,000 would be reduced from 10 per cent to 5 per cent.

Limits on mortgage loans by federal savings and loan associations for one-family homes would be increased from $55,000 to $60,000.

The Senate later this week is expected to take up legislation revising clean air rules, including a one-year delay in a scheduled tightening of auto exhaust standards.

The exhaust deadline already has been deferred three times. Included in the 1970 clean air act for achieving a 90 per cent reduction in tailpipe pollutants, it now is set for 1978 model cars. Last month, the House adopted an amendment, backed by the auto industry, providing for a two-year further delay and then imposing less stringent standards.

The clean air bill also covers other air pollution sources, generally giving industrial areas more time to meet standards, while offering added protection for areas that now have clean air.

A bill revising the 1939 Hatch Act, which for 39 years has barred partisan political activity by federal employes, comes up in the House on Tuesday.

The bill, similar to one vetoed in 1976 by then-President Gerald Ford, is supported by the Carter administration.

It would permit federal employes to take leave of absence without pay to run for elective office. It would continue prohibitions against solicitation of political contributions or votes on federal property, or using official authority or influence for political purposes.

On Wednesday, the House begins 10 days of work without interruption on major appropriations bills for federal departments and agencies for fiscal 1978, beginning with budgets of the Treasury Department, Transportation Department and the Postal Service.

Stock list gains again

NEW YORK (AP) —The stock market extended Friday's rally with a broad advance today.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose more than a point in early trading.

Gainers led losers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The upswing was set in motion by the news Friday that the rise of the wholesale price index had slowed to 0.4 per cent last month, while the unemployment rate dropped to a 2 1/2-year low of 6.9 per cent.

In addition, New York's Citibank held its prime lending rate at 6 3/4 per cent, although the bank's formula gave it the option of raising the basic charge on blue-chip loans to 7 per cent.

Monroe Auto Equipment picked up 3/4 to 1 1/4 in active trading today. The company said an appeals court had turned down the Federal Trade Commission's bid to hold up the acquisition of Monroe by Tenneco.

On Friday the Dow Jones industrial average climbed 9.08 to 912.23, closing out the week with a 13.40-point advance.

Gainers outpaced losers by more than a 5-2 margin on the NYSE.

Big Board volume reached 20.33 million shares, against 18.62 million on Thursday.

The NYSE's composite index rose .48 to 53.36.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index jumped 1.03 to 113.28.

The News In Brief

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Christopher Lance has had a taste of what it must be like to be Burt Reynolds.

Lance has been picked by Ron Smith Enterprises as Reynold's look-alike.

Smith says he and Lance were recently dining when "all of a sudden a dozen girls about 13 years old rushed up to the table and started putting pencils and pens into his hands."

Smith also says that women who have won his contests for looking very much like celebrities also find Lance in demand. He says he draws straws to determine which lady look-alikes will get to travel with Lance on promotional trips.

Smith, who gets as much as $1,500 to supply his celeb lookalikes to private parties, conventions and supermarket openings, is still without a winner for what is turning out to be his most sought-after title: Farrah Fawcett-Majors' double.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "There is some Nixon sentiment out there," says Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas. But the 1976 GOP vice presidential nominee stops short of predicting a quick political comeback for the fallen former president.

For the moment, "I don't see any active role for former President Nixon," Dole said on ABC-TV's "Issues and Answers" program Sunday. He said Nixon may become an elder statesman in the Republican party, but not yet.

"It takes more than four interviews ... to properly rehabilitate Richard Nixon," Dole said, referring to the recent Nixon-David Frost interviews.

Wheelchair-bound skyjacker nabbed

KUWAIT (AP) — Kuwaiti troops dressed as mechanics overpowered a Lebanese man in a wheelchair who hijacked a Lebanese jetliner with 112 other persons aboard and demanded $1.5 million, airport sources reported.

The 101 other passengers and 11 crew members were unharmed.

The hijacker was identified as Nasser Mohammed Ali Abu Khaled, 28, from the northern Lebanese village of Kubaieh. One of the other passengers said he told them:

"I am a sick man and I am forced to do this. I need the money."

Abu Khaled had been carried aboard the plane in Beirut in his wheelchair. Officials at the Beirut airport said he was not given the usual security search because he was an invalid.

Radio Kuwait said Abu Khaled was being questioned by security officials and by the Lebanese and Iraqi ambassadors.

The airliner, a Boeing 707 operated by Lebanon's Middle East Airways, was nearing the end of a flight from Beirut to Baghdad, Iraq, on Sunday when Abu Khaled wheeled his chair down the aisle, held a small pistol on the pilot and demanded to be flown to Kuwait, passenger Kamel Dawi reported.

After the plane landed in Kuwait, the hijacker made his ransom demand. Officials at the airport began to negotiate with him, and the ambassadors of Lebanon and Iraq joined in. Meanwhile, Kuwait's interior and defense minister, Sheik Saad el-Abudlla el Sabah, and his security forces made plans to capture the man, a government announcement broadcast by Radio Kuwait said.

After nearly eight hours of negotiations, the Kuwait Information Ministry announced that Abu Khaled had agreed to surrender after being promised safe conduct out of the country. Instead, a group of commandos boarded the plane disguised as air conditioning technicians and grabbed the man with the help of two male stewards.

Dawi said Abu Khaled fired a single shot from his pistol as he was seized, but no one was hit. He was brought down the ramp from the plane in his wheelchair with his hands tied behind his back.

"He was a pathetic figure and we felt we could subdue him, but we waited," said Dawi.

Two Britons were the only Westerners among the passengers.

Rosalynn Carter faces Brazilian test

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Rosalynn Carter is moving on from a triumphant visit to Peru to the toughest challenge of her Latin American tour: Brazil and the dissatisfaction of its military regime with some of her husband's key policies.

"Rosalynn Conquered Everyone," said a headline in Lima's tabloid El Correo.

"She's won us all by her sympathy, sweetness, simplicity and the frank manner with which she treats us," said Foreign Minister Jose de la Puente.

Reports from Brasilia, the Brazilian capital, said that despite some initial chill, Mrs. Carter's visit there was now viewed as a stepping stone to more amicable relations between the United States and its most powerful southern neighbor.

However, Mrs. Carter was certain to hear some frank talk about two issues in particular: her husband's opposition to Brazil's purchase of a nuclear reprocessing plant from West Germany and the Carter administration's criticisms of the Brazilian regime's human rights policies.

Carter is opposed to the sale of the nuclear reprocessing plant because plutonium that can be used in atomic bombs is one of its byproducts. But a special team of U.S. negotiators who visited Brasilia three months ago and U.S. pressure on the West German government have failed to get either government to cancel the deal.

The Brazilian government canceled its 25-year-old military accord with the United States and rejected $50 million in military loan credits because of a State Department report on the human rights situation in Brazil. The report has not been made public but is assumed to be critical of the military regime.

Mrs. Carter will spend three days beginning today in Brazil, the fifth country on her seven-nation, 13-day tour of Latin America. Her schedule includes meetings with President Ernesto Geisel, Foreign Minister Antonio Azaredo da Silveira and other officials and a dinner given by the president.

She goes on Wednesday to Recife, which she visited in 1973 during an exchange program between Brazil and Georgia. She will spend the night there with friends, Mr. and Mrs. Camilo Steiner.

Young urges letting up

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Young says it's time to "let up" on criticism of the Soviet government's human rights policies because he doubts that complaining does any good.

"Frankly, I've said almost nothing about Soviet dissidents because I don't know that it helps anything," the Carter administration's ambassador to the United Nations said in an interview in the July issue of Playboy magazine.

Annual outbreak at Athens quelled

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Seven persons were arrested and two were injured slightly during a weekend disturbance that local law enforcement officials call an "annual event" in this college community.

The disturbance began early Saturday and involved an estimated 250 persons, mostly students from Ohio University. Beginning about 1 a.m., it broke up about an hour later with no damage reported and no arrests made. Then, Saturday night, the disturbance resumed when a crowd of about 1,000 persons refused to leave the main street when the bars closed.

Police shot wooden plugs called knee knockers from tear gas guns to disperse the crowd and move the students back into their dorms at Ohio University.

Police Sgt. Howard Frost said seven persons were arrested — six on misdemeanor charges of disorderly conduct, and a seventh for inciting to riot, a felony. All were released on their own recognizance.

Two persons were treated at a local hospital for minor cuts.

About 60 law enforcement officers from the Athens City police department the Athens County and Washington County sheriffs' departments and the campus security force were called to the scene.

Athens policeman Richard Mayer said a crowd began to gather in the downtown area at about 10 p.m.

"Most of the students were just standing around watching to see what would happen," Mayer said. "At about 12:40 a.m. they took over the street. There were a few that seemed to be instigating it."

"They began heckling the police officers. As the bars started to close the group started to grow."

Mayer said that traffic was able to continue on the streets until about 2:30 a.m. Then the crowd took over the

Beer way starts on small scale

GOLDEN, Colo. (AP) — If Bill Coors can do it, so can Philadelphia's Joe Ortlieb.

Coors, who brews Coors beer in this Rocky Mountain town and markets it in 13 western states, has taken out newspaper ads warning drinkers not to buy Coors from persons selling it in the East because it may have deteriorated on its way across the country.

Ortlieb, the head of a small, 108-year-old family brewery in the City of Brotherly Love, has the same philosophy about his beer.

He ran a newspaper ad here last week, urging Coloradans: "Please don't buy my beer, either."

The ad explained that the beer rarely is shipped outside a 100-mile radius of Philadelphia, although he invited Westerners to sample his product when they get to Philadelphia.

But if a bottle of Ortlieb's shows up in Colorado, he said, "Avoid it like a den of riled-up Rocky Mountain rattlers."

Opportunity Knocks Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss ... and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss ... but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair ... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

Measles still a problem

When live vaccine for measles came into use 14 years ago, it was confidently supposed that this disease would soon be all but eradicated. The contrary fact is that measles appears to be on the increase.

During the first three months of this year there was a dramatic rise in the number of cases. Considerable outbreaks have been reported in several states: California, Indiana, Maryland, Michigan, Virginia.

There is some dispute among health professionals about how long the vaccine's protection lasts. Some investigators find a "waning immunity" factor; others deny its existence. Thus there are some indications that the vaccine may not be wholly effective.

Apparently the main reason for continued outbreaks of the disease, however, is more simple - and easier to correct, if society chooses to do so. What we have is another example of that not uncommon phenomenon, failure to make full use of a medical tool.

This has been seen with regard to poliomyelitis; a couple of decades after the vaccine became available, many children are not getting polio shots. Now measles is providing another example of the phenomenon.

In short, large numbers of American children are not being immunized against measles. This though most states (all but Idaho and Wyoming) have rules or law intended to assure universal immunization.

The remedy is self-evident: a renewed effort to see that all children get their measles shots. Also record-keeping should be improved to make sure the momentum of routine immunization is kept up.

Whatever flaws there may be in the medical technology involved, the incidence of measles could be greatly reduced if the vaccination tool were as widely used as it should be.

A WORD EDGEWISE....By John P. Roche

Heads in Middle East sand

Once upon a time there was a President of the United States with a very sensible Middle Eastern policy. His name? Lyndon B. Johnson. His policy? Let the contestants work out peace among themselves. "Nasser's got a phone," he said to me in 1968. "All he's got to do is get a Jerusalem telephone book." The United States, in short, was willing to help if asked, but basically if the Arab states wanted peace with Israel, they could take the initiative.

Then came the "Grand Designers," Marquis Scranton, Duke Rogers and Prince Kissinger, who set to work with their Erector sets to provide a "Great Power" settlement. This was delightful for the Arabs who could disconnect their phones and let the Americans lead the parade.

The Israelis were properly dismayed, but the minute they suggested the Americans mind their own diplomatic business, all sorts of pressures were exerted. Inspired leaks on "Israel's intransigence" dripped out of the White House, their arms requests were put on "Hold," and American Jewish pressure on the Administration was portrayed as unconstitutional.

Then came the 1973 "Yom Kippur" War, and the Arabs discovered another weapon: oil. Now, as I pointed out at the time, the rationale for the oil cartel came from the writings of the great Islamic economist Abu Adam Smith: The oil producers began behaving like classical capitalists. Thus the presence or absence of Israel on the Middle Eastern map is utterly irrelevant to the price of oil. If Israel were on the moon, the OPEC nations would be sticking us up.

However dismal the logic, successive American administrations kept coming up with package solutions to the Arab-Israeli confrontation. All were based on the bizarre conception that both sides would act in good faith, when the history of the past 30 years clearly demonstrates the Arab states do not want peace - except on what might be called North Vietnamese terms. On May 1, for example, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat regaled the readers of his house-organ "October," and a brief excerpt from his continuing memoirs gives the flavor.

"After I ordered the expulsion of the Soviet experts from Egypt, I felt at ease," said that sportsman. "This expulsion was a strategic camouflage or coverup for what I was going to do afterward. . . . The expulsion of the Russians was meant to assure the Jews and defeatist Egyptians we were not going to fight. . . ." The maneuver was, in fact, very clever, but the tenor of Sadat's commentary is hardly that of a dedicated peace-seeker.

The Israeli voters fed all this into their computers when they turned out the Labor Government. Two statistics show when and why Likud received its plurality. In the Israeli Defense Forces, Likud took Labor 45.5 per cent to 22.2 per cent. Among "Eastern Jews," that is refugees from Arab countries, Likud again was ahead 2-1. Why would the soldiers and the Eastern Jews throw out Labor?

Concededly there were significant economic issues, and the "alte bonze", the old bosses, had gotten a little lax in their commitment to socialist norms of personal integrity. But of the two groups mentioned - who might be called the "frontline groups" because of their direct relationship with Arabs - Labor was considered too trusting, too willing to go along with American schemes.

So Menahem Begin, who has been billed in our press as "son of Attila the Hun," is the new Israeli leader. This must be disconcerting to those who have been plugged into Labor for 30 years - an American Jewish leader was recently overheard asking, "What is a Likud?" - but Begin is anything but the town arsonist. His election statement called for direct negotiations between Israel and its Arab opponents. In essence, he suggested that imposed settlements were off, but added: "Israel must not throw up her hands in despair, not become weary of inviting her neighbors, time and again, to negotiate a genuine peace without preconditions or formulations intruded from outside. We do not require that the Arabs accept our views as an a prior condition of our participation in serious peace negotiations, and we won't submit to demands that we accept their views as a prior condition for their participation in such negotiations."

For Americans this statement should make sense: it is precisely the posture taken by Ben Franklin and his associates in negotiating American independence with the British. It was the core of Johnson's policy; let's hope that President Carter curbs his missionary zeal and abandons "Great Power" schemes of Salvation.

Vehicle inspection law studied

By TOM DIEMER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio lawmakers are looking to other states for guidance in weighing the pros and cons of mandating annual motor vehicle inspections.

Two bills are pending to require inspections in Ohio, although the state Department of Highway Safety opposes the concept as costly and unnecessary. The issue has been debated off and on at the Statehouse for at least 10 years. Feedback from other states has been mixed.

In Wyoming, an annual inspection law was repealed earlier this year after a committee study found a lack of uniformity in inspection procedures, inadequate fees and charges of unneeded repair work ordered by inspectors.

Reform measures were offered by those seeking to save the program, a Wyoming legislative officer wrote the state Highway Safety Department.

"Opponents contended, however, that the program was not worth salvaging inasmuch as it could not be conclusively demonstrated that the inspection program reduced the number of vehicular accidents, or conversely that defective vehicles were in any great measure responsible for those accidents that did occur," the officer wrote.

Arthur Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, chairman of the House Highways and Highway Safety Committee, pointed out that Wyoming, one of the least populated states in the nation, was not comparable to a highly urbanized state like Ohio.

A program in neighboring Pennsylvania, comparable in many ways to Ohio, got a favorable review from a state trooper who helps to administer it.

"We like to pride ourselves in thinking that we have one of the best programs in the country," Cpl. Harris Basore of the Pennsylvania Highway Patrol said.

Basore said Pennsylvania inspected nine million vehicles semi-annually in a system that has proven to be self-supporting.

"We are not without our problems," the trooper conceded.

He said a cache of counterfeit inspection stickers, placed on windshields of automobiles, had recently been confiscated in Philadelphia.

With inspections and repairs made at the same location in the Pennsylvania system, Basore said some unscrupulous inspectors had been known to "load people up with repairs.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Sex without love a no-no

DEAR ABBY: I never miss your column and believe that more people read Dear Abby than any other part of the paper.

Here is a thorny question I have never known you to comment on:

Love: Are the millions of unmarried, widowed and divorced people supposed to do without it?

We are taught to share everything else, so what is wrong with sharing love with some needy person?

And can you separate love from sex?

M.R.
DEAR M.R.: Sex for sex's sake means anyone will do. Love is selective. Only a certain somebody can fill a need for love.

The need for sex rarely leads to love, but the need for love usually leads to sex. Promiscuous love? Si! Promiscuous sex? No!

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago, I was depressed for a period of time, and since I considered myself an enlightened person, I went to a private psychiatrist. He assured me that there was nothing seriously wrong, that I didn't need prolonged treatment, and after a few more appointments, he dismissed me. That was the sum total of my "psychiatric treatment."

A year ago, I applied for a position. I was asked, "Have you ever had psychiatric treatment?" Seeing no reason not to tell the truth, I mentioned my experience.

In case you don't know this, there are many government positions (and many private one) that cannot be held by anyone with a "history" of psychiatric treatment.

Abby, a person can be nuttier than a pecan plantation, but if he's never been to a psychiatrist, he's considered mentally stable.

I'd appreciate your comments.

STABLE BUT LABELED

DEAR LABELED: There are still in existence a number of laws, rules, regulations, traditions and precedents that are unjust, senseless and plain idiotic.

If a single session (or a hundred) with a psychiatrist makes one a "mental case," then all psychoanalysts are "mental cases," because in order to become a psychoanalyst, one must himself be psychoanalyzed.

Steering clear of a psychiatrist's office does not necessarily affirm one's good mental health. The person who boasts that he's never been to a psychiatrist can be a lot sicker than those who have.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EAGER TO SUCCEED: Sorry, but you will never accomplish what you have in mind if you continue to wait until you "find the time." No one ever FOUND time for anything. He made it.

Americans drive slower, but still over limit

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Three years after the 55 mile-per-hour speed limit went into effect across the nation, authorities say Americans are driving more slowly than they used to, but are still going faster than the law allows.

An Associated Press spot check shows the number of traffic tickets has risen sharply since the days before the energy crisis forced the speed cutback.

Officials in most areas say they are enforcing the limit rigorously, but they concede that drivers often can travel up to five or 10 miles an hour faster than the limit without fear of retribution. There have been some attempts — mostly unsuccessful — to ease penalties for drivers who break the speed limit, but don't go faster than 75 miles an hour.

Authorities in some states say they are concerned by figures which show the average speed is inching up.

In North Dakota, for example, Col. Ralph Wood, superintendent of the state highway patrol, said average speeds last year ranged from 57.3 to 59.6 miles an hour. He said monthly surveys for this year show from 60 to 73 per cent of the drivers going faster than 55 miles an hour.

"It's the trend that bothers us," Wood said, noting that the situation was still better than it was in 1972-73 when drivers routinely traveled at 75 miles an hour.

The North Dakota Legislature passed a bill that would have limited fines for speeding between 55 and 65 miles an hour to $5, but it was vetoed by Gov. Arthur A. Link, who said the measure was "an invitation" to break the law.

Georgia officials also reported a trend upward in the average speed, from 58 miles an hour in 1974 to 61 miles an hour last year and 62 miles an hour this year.

A spokesman for the state patrol noted that different courts give different fines and added: "There are some areas where you cannot convict for speed less than 10 over."

He said the motorist is usually safe from a ticket if he or she is driving at 65 miles an hour on an interstate highway in Georgia. "But they're not driving at the speeds they once did. They used to run at 75 or 80. The motoring public is no fool. They know what speed they can drive and get away with."

C. W. Dorman, director of highway safety in South Carolina, said surveys show 51 per cent of the drivers are going over 55 miles an hour. Of these, about one-fourth are going faster than 60. One reason that almost half the drivers are complying with the speed limit may be the threat of tickets: Dorman said arrests the year after the 55 m.p.h. limit went into effect went up 50 per cent; the next year they increased 100 per cent and have remained at that level.

Lt. Patrick J. Monaghan of the Idaho State Police said the state is enforcing the lower speed limit "very heavily." As evidence, he noted that the 55 m.p.h. limit took effect in April 1974. From January through March of that year, he said, 3,758 speeding citations were issued. In the same period this year, there were 12,747 speeding citations.

In Kansas, Col. Allen Rush of the highway patrol, said speeding arrests are well-above pre-1974 levels. He said the number of arrests declined slightly in the first quarter of 1977, but attributed the drop to the severe weather that kept people off the roads.

Studies by the state Department of Transportation show that the average speed of vehicles on Kansas highways went from 63.2 in 1972 to 55.7 in 1974, 56.1 in 1975 and 57.1 in 1976.

"There are a lot of reasons for wanting to see the speed limit observed," said Rush. "First, there's safety. It is saving lots of lives. Secondly, it's the most important means available to government at this time for saving fuel."

South Dakota Highway Patrol Supt. Dennis Eismach said average speeds on highways are stable at about 60 miles an hour. "Most drivers are traveling 55 and 60 and we're not seeing many above that speed," he said. "I think that's contributing to our lower rate of accidents, but it looks like we're never going to get everyone down to 55."

Col. Al Lubker, superintendent of the Missouri Highway Patrol, said motorists are not complying with the limit and added that arrests are up sharply. He said most arrests are of motorists traveling between 65 and 70 miles an hour. Before the 55 m.p.h. limit went into effect, the speed of those arrested ranged from 75 to 80 miles an hour.

Under Missouri law, a driver is not assessed "points" against his license as long as he is not exceeding the previously posted limit, even if he is going over 55. He pays a fine only.

Lubker said the fact that drivers don't risk losing their licenses for speeding as long as they don't go too fast makes them more inclined to speed. "We have many people who are driving 60 and chiseling on the speed limit," he said.

Michigan, meanwhile, is considering a bill which would make driving over 55 to the list of offenses for which a driver gets points. Capt. Paul Ruge, commander of the state police, said compliance with the 55 m.p.h. limit is "excellent." He said the average statewide speed is 57.8 miles an hour. "For the most part, we've eliminated the high-speed driver," Ruge said.

A spokesman for the Illinois State Police said: "It is an overwhelming job trying to keep motorists in the 55 m.p.h. range. The magnitude of the problem is increasing. We have told the federal government it has to do a better job of convincing people of compliance."

In the first quarter of this year, studies showed 84 per cent of the drivers on interstates were going over 55 miles and hour, 35 per cent were going over 60 and 8 per cent were doing more than 65. In the same period last year, 77.8 per cent were going over 55, 32.6 per cent over 60 and 6.8 per cent over 65.

For some motorists, speeding is a sometime thing. Kentucky State Police Lt. Ernest Bivens said he notices a difference in drivers when he is out in his private car and when he is in a police vehicle.

"It's a kind of lonely feeling to be in my Chevy Nova, having everyone go by and think, 'What's wrong with that nut going only 55?' But people are nice. They don't blow the horns too much though they do get kind of upset."

When Bivens is in uniform, in his blue and white cruiser, "it's the greatest difference in the world. When they pull up aside me, they lose their incentive for going 65."

Ecevit seen vote victor in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — Official returns from Turkey's general election gave former Premier Bulent Ecevit's center-left Republican People's party a slim lead today over Premier Suleyman Demirel's conservative Justice party.

Ecevit, whose victorious invasion of Cyprus made him a national hero in 1974, said vote tallies by his party workers were far ahead of the official count. He predicted the Republicans would take 222 of the 450 seats in the National Assembly, only four short of a majority.

"We will come to power and we will rule alone," Ecevit told cheering supporters at a dawn rally.

He predicted that the Justice party would get 173 seats.

The official tabulation of about 75 per cent of the votes cast Sunday gave the Republicans 4,611,606 votes, or 40.4 per cent; the Justice party 4,109,860, or 36 per cent; the ultra-conservative Moslem National Salvation party, 883,246, 7.7 per cent, and the neo-fascist National Action Party, 660,693, 5.8 per cent. Three other parties and independents got 731,872.

Seats in the assembly are allotted on a basis of proportional representation. In the last assembly, the Republicans had 188 seats, the Justice party had 171, the National Salvation party had 40 and the rest were divided among five parties and nine independents.

College diploma no guarantee

URBANA, Ohio (AP) — A college diploma is no guarantee the graduate will find a well paying job, but it's often the minimum requirement for such a job, says the chancellor of the Ohio Board of Regents.

But students must make the investment in college although there is no guarantee it will pay off, Dr. James A. Norton told the 73-member graduating class of Urbana College on Sunday.

Not all education will take place in colleges, he said, adding, "each of you will find new knowledge is added to what you have learned in college."

Vandals damage four city homes

Four Washington C.H. homes were damaged by vandals late Friday night or early Saturday morning, according to Washington C.H. police officers. A window in each of the homes was shattered by a rock.

Two of the residences were located in the 400 block of E. Temple Street and the other two incidents occurred in the 400 block of E. Elm Street.

Reporting damaged windows were Everett Moll of 412 E. Temple St., Bernice Stevens of 417 E. Temple St., Thomas White of 416 E. Elm St., and Robert Tice of 411 E. Elm St..

The windows were valued from $15 to $75.

A window valued at $600 was also broken over the weekend at the Soldan's women's apparel store, 212 E. Court St.

Police officers reported that a citizen's band radio operator contacted the department reporting that two men were fighting in front of the window early Sunday morning. One of the men reportedly fell against the large five by eight foot window. The two men then ran from the scene.

City police are also investigating the theft of two citizen's band radios from vehicles parked on Perdue Plaza, and a similar theft from a car parked on Willabar Drive.

William Mason, 615 Perdue Plaza, and James L. Coldiron of 633 Perdue Plaza, reported losses of citizens band radios valued at $200 and $100 respectively. The two thefts occurred sometime Monday morning.

Carmen A. Frogale, 649 Willabar Drive told police officers that he saw two persons in a driveway across the street from his home at 4 a.m. Monday. When he shouted at them they ran. He then discovered that his citizen's band radio was missing. It was valued at $125.

James E. Shasteen, 650 Willabar Drive, reported that a citizen's band radio antenna was broken off his car. The antenna was valued at $45.

City police also reported two dog bite incidents Saturday morning.

At 11 a.m., Nancy E. Binzel, 13, of 542 Washington Ave., was bitten on the leg while she was riding her bicycle near the intersection of Paint and Main streets.

Shortly before 12 noon, Kathy J. Mustard, 24, of 113½ W. Court St., was bitten by a dog while she was walking on Dayton Avenue.

Both victims were treated at the Fayette County Memorial Hospital emergency room.

Teacher bill vote slated

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — One of the most intensely lobbied bills of the year highlights the House calendar this week, as legislators vote Wednesday on tenure, job evaluation and due process rights of public school teachers.

The Senate returns Monday for a floor session and an all-important Commerce and Labor Committee vote on another priority of the Ohio Education Association and the equally powerful AFL-CIO — collective bargaining for public employees.

If the bill escapes committee on schedule, it will be considered on the Senate floor before the end of the week, according to the sponsor, Sen. Harry Meshe, D-33 Youngstown.

Collective bargaining with a limited right to strike and teacher evaluation — critics call the bill "instant tenure" — were among the most controversial issues of the previous session of the legislature. Both bills were vetoed by Gov. James A. Rhodes.

Group fights generating plant

PORTAGE, Ind. (AP) — Citing "inadequate environmental impact studies," the Izaak Walton League has voted to continue its effort to block Hoosier Energy's Merom generating station.

The opposition came in the form of a resolution adopted here Sunday, the final day of the annual convention of the league's Indiana division.

Executive secretary Thomas Dustin said the Izaak Walton League, a nationwide conservation organization, is concerned primarily about the large volume of Wabash River water that would be needed for cooling purposes at the electrical power plant in Sullivan County.

Rain not enough for most farmers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Here is the agriculture weather advisory for Ohio provided by the National Weather Service:
A low pressure system dropped across Lower Michigan into northwest Ohio and moved in off the east coast today. Showers and thundershowers ahead and along this system and its attendant cold fronts were quite numerous and heavy at times.
However, rainfall amounts at reporting stations in Ohio indicated that the activity was rather widely scattered and highly localized. Neighboring states to the west and northwest did receive generous amounts of the badly needed rain.
Showers and thundershowers were possible earlier today, but by tonight, clearing will have taken place across the state.
Early morning low temperatures Tuesday will drop into the 40s as cooler Canadian air flows in behind the front.
Field Operations — Interruptions in field activities will be localized. Areas with heavier rainfall amounts could see delays of a day or two. Most sections of the state, however, will continue much the same as last week. Cultivation for weed control and side dressing with liquid nitrogen should be the main outdoor field work.

Plant Response — Plant response in the shower areas will be quick and early growth will again become vigorous. Growth in other areas will be limited by the available soil moisture supply. Evaporative rates will be slow due to the influx of cooler Canadian air behind the front. By Tuesday there will be some increases. The cooler temperatures and lower evaporative rate will remove some stress from young plants, but rainfall is still needed, and irrigation is urged where possible.
Haying — By Tuesday, cutting and field drying will become good, and should remain that way for the remainder of the week for all but the northeastern sections of the state. Evaporative rates will be slowly increasing. The percentage of possible sunshine will be large and surface winds will keep a good flow of dry air over fields. Initial cuttings are nearing completion across the state, and the prospects for later cuttings is fair due to the slow regrowth. Warmer than usual temperatures and large insect populations are slowing stubble activation.
Wheat — After today, wheat harvesting conditions will be good through most of the state. Maturity is fast approaching and dry down will be moderate to fast. This will be a good opportunity to get the grain in without losses due to weathering, and a good time to get the second crop in the ground early.

Frank Sinatra receives honor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Singer Frank Sinatra has been presented with Israel's Cultural Award at an Independence Ball celebrating the Jewish nation's 29th anniversary.
More than 1,000 persons attended the affair on Sunday at the Washington Hilton, and watched as Israel's U.S. ambassador, Simcha Dinitz, honored Sinatra.

PROCLAMATION SIGNED — Washington C.H. City Council chairman Bertha McCullough, seated, signed a proclamation officially declaring June 11 Bicycle Safety Day, as City Manager George H. Shapter and Pizza Hut employees, Joe Downs, manager, and Mark Johnson, watch. The Pizza Hut is sponsoring a bicycle rodeo on June 11.

Bike rodeo slated June 11

It's one thing to own a bicycle, but knowing how to operate it properly is another thing all together. That's why the Pizza Hut is sponsoring a bicycle safety rodeo on June 11 in the Pizza Hut parking lot on S. Elm Street.
According to Joe Downs, manager of Pizza Hut, the bicycle rodeo will give participants the opportunity to learn bike safety, how to ride a bike through an obstacle course, and how to read highway signs. Downs said the Ohio Department of Transportation has furnished the rodeo with highway signs. Law enforcement officers from the Fayette County Sheriff's Department and from the Washington C.H. Police Department will be on hand to answer questions.

There will be no admission to the rodeo which will begin at 10 a.m., with registration at 9:30 a.m., and those who successfully complete the obstacle course (which has 11 obstacles), will be awarded certificates, reflectors, reflector tape, free drinks and a variety of other gifts.

Downs said it is important for children to have some kind of bicycle program in which to participate so "they can get into the habit of using their bicycles in the right manner."

Gasoline tax said not enough

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — If gasoline taxes remain Indiana's prime source of road maintenance funding, the state can expect more highway problems, one of the state's largest engineering firms said in a report.

The report, written by Fred E. Musleh, director of highway engineering for Clyde E. Williams and Associates Inc., said that inflation and spiraling construction costs will also eat away at road maintenance funds.

Musleh's report was prepared for the July issue of the national trade magazine, "Traffic Engineering," the official publication of the Institute of Transportation Engineering.

Bilandic favored

CHICAGO (AP) — Acting Mayor Michael Bilandic is expected to score a lopsided victory when Chicago voters choose a successor to fill out the term of the late Richard J. Daley.

Republican candidate Dennis Block, the only alderman from his party in the City Council, said at least 800,000 votes must be cast if he is to have a chance. But Democratic leaders predicted the turnout in Tuesday's election would be less than the 697,000 who voted in 1975 when Daley won his sixth term as mayor.

Bilandic, 54, was a three-term Democratic alderman from Daley's 11th ward when the City Council named him acting mayor after Daley died of a heart attack last December.

The winner will fill Daley's unexpired term, which runs until April 1979.

Two minor-party candidates are on the ballot. They are Dennis Brasky of the Socialist Workers Party and Gerald Rose of the United States Labor Party.

Block, a 29-year-old attorney, planned heavy campaigning today.

Energy plan fact stands out: It'll be costly

By WALTER R. MEARS
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress and the country are wading toward decisions on energy policy through waves of projections and statistics, some conflicting, most confusing, none conclusive.

It turns out that there are numbers to support almost any position on the issue. All it takes to play is a pocket calculator and any of the batch of reports that have rolled off presses and mimeograph machines all spring.

President Carter warns of an impending national catastrophe unless the government acts. Republicans contend the government is the catastrophe, and argue that the cure is in the market place.

So the consumer can take his choice. Either way, he is going to pay his money, since there is solid agreement on one fact: the price of fuel is going to keep going up, sharply.

Now the Congressional Budget Office has weighed in with a 140-page analysis of Carter's energy program, seeking to help focus the debate.

For openers, it points out that there are more than 100 interdependent proposals in the energy plan Carter has sent to Congress. If nothing else, that dramatizes the complexity of the problem and of the proposed solution.

The congressional analysts say the major reason for mounting imports are the controls that have kept U.S. oil and gas prices "artificially below world levels."

"Over the past four years, this regulatory system has served to cushion Americans from the dramatic shifts in consumption, and in turn in life-styles . . ." the budget office report says. "Artificially low prices also have tended to encourage energy consumption and discourage the search for and production of new domestic resources."

Carter's solution is a system of taxes and rebates, together with an easing of controls on the price of newly produced oil, so as to increase gradually U.S. prices to the levels of the world market place.

While his answers are different, Republican Melvin R. Laird, the former congressman and secretary of defense, sounds a similar complaint about government price regulations.

Laird, in a report sponsored by the American Enterprise Institute for Public Policy Research, contends that the United States "leads the world in self-deception" because of fuel price controls and the lowest energy tax rates in the industrialized world.

He argues that the crisis is not in energy but in policy, and that the more the government has done, the worse the problem has become.

Laird said an unregulated market place could correct the situation, with a windfall profits tax to prevent an industry bonanza, and with its revenues to be used to ease the impact of higher prices on low-income citizens.

The congressional study sticks to analysis without recommendations, but it does suggest that the administration proposals will not reach the conservation goals Carter set.

Its analysts estimate oil import savings at about 3.6 million barrels a day, well short of the 4.5 million barrels that is the administration's target.

Among the other figures and projections produced by the congressional analysts:

—Carter's proposed standby gasoline tax, a nickel a gallon to take effect if consumption exceeds government targets, probably would not be triggered until 1982 — if Congress approves the system. That is a big if, for the gas tax faces stiff opposition and is rated one of the Carter measures least likely to succeed.

—Under the Carter plan, the budget office estimates that fuel prices will go up by approximately 74 per cent over the four years ending in 1980. But in any event, inflation and developments in the market place are expected to raise fuel prices by 49.5 per cent during the same period.

—Even with the Carter program, the average American family probably will do more driving in 1985 than it does now. The current average is 15,000 miles a year, and it probably will go up to 17,000 miles, with higher gas prices offset by improved automobile mileage.

While the numbers are complicated, the political problem is not. The congressional analysts say that the benefits of a new energy program will not be evident for a decade, and then they will be national, not individual, benefits.

"The costs, however, are likely to be experienced first, more directly, and by more people."

Will leaves money to nation's blacks

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — One woman writes that she wants the money to run a karate school. A church official wants the money so he can finish a church building. And a prison inmate says he needs seed money to start his own business.

About 3,000 such letters ask to share the inheritance of Joseph Dorgan, a white farmer from Cumming, near Des Moines, who left his $350,000 estate to "the people of the Negro race."

"Please be advised that I'm looking forward to sharing some of Mr. Dorgan's will," writes the Iowa State Penitentiary inmate, who asked for $25,000.

"My inquiry is to get my share, which I am entitled to under the law. I am looking forward to starting my own business pretty soon, and this will help me get started."

The letters have been coming in to the office of Des Moines attorney William Wimer since the will of the 79-year-old Dorgan was made public after his death in 1973.

Wimer is co-executor of the estate along with the National Bank and Trust Co. He says he has chosen a small committee of local blacks to help him decide how to distribute the nearly $30,000 in interest on the trust that will be available each year. Names of the committee members have not been released.

It is not clear why Dorgan left such a will. The document was contested in court by his lone survivor, niece Marcella Harkin of nearby Norwalk. She settled out of court in March for $35,000, Wimer said.

Wimer says the money likely will go to education projects. Requests for the money are accompanied by details of needs that range from the sublime to the ridiculous.

The secretary of a struggling rural Georgia church asks for money to finish the church building. "We have only poured part of the floor, and we only have $436 left."

A young Detroit man with a degree in analytical chemistry says he has been out of work a year because of cutbacks in federally funded research programs.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A familiar cliché: a struggling young comic comes to town, works free at club for exposure, is spotted by noted producer, is signed for TV shows, is finally able to pay rent on time.
Yet it's all happened to Robin Williams, 24, of San Francisco. He hasn't been on TV yet, but next season he'll appear in all six of producer George Schlatter's new "Laugh-in" specials on NBC.
It was in the Comedy Store, a showcase for new comics in suburban Westwood, that Schlatter spotted, then signed Williams, whom he calls just as fast upstairs as Jonathon Winters "but much more disciplined."
A lean, muscular man, Williams usually opens in a furry hat, a tattered black overcoat and a University of Moscow T-shirt, posing as Joey Stalin, a Russian comic whose English isn't so hot.
Moving quickly, nervously about the tiny stage, crying "Yes! Thank you very much!" at the slightest laugh, his act, much of it spur-of-the-moment whimsy, defies description.
On any night, he may try to teach a rubber chicken to talk, then hurl it into the audience, then lie upside down on a chair, announcing he's now doing "Superman on speed."
Or he may slip into a wild Shakespearean take-off, then pick up a red glass bowl containing a lit candle, hold it aloft as kind of a Poor Yorick flambee, and cry out to a heckler: "Let's drink a toast — suck wax and we'll seal your lips forever."
The odd thing about all this funny business is that Williams, by his reckoning, only has been in comedy about a year and a month. He originally set out to be an actor, a stage actor at that.
An Edinburgh, Scotland native whose folks moved to the United States when he was a tot, he says he studied at New York's Juilliard School of Drama, then took a leave of absence to try his luck.
But roles were few, so he drifted to comedy in New York and later with a San Francisco comedy troupe called Papaya Juice.
With $10 in his pocket, he came to the City of Angels last year, premiered — at 1:30 a.m. — at a comedy showcase called The Improvisation, and thus launched the job search they call the LA Scuffle.
The scuffle is hard, particularly on those wretched nights when a rookie comic faces what Williams calls "high-energy crazies," or such as the hostile witness who poured a glass of water on him.
"She got me from behind while I was playing a gospel preacher," he recalled. "I was going to baptize her with a pitcher of water, but she had two very big friends..."

Television used as police tool

CLEVELAND (AP) — Police in Cleveland Heights will soon use closed circuit television to broadcast a 24-hour crime summary prepared for officers to view, particularly at shift changes.
Police Chief Martin G. Lentz says the new videotape and color photo equipment will be ready by the middle of June.
The equipment is being paid for with a $27,000 federal grant and $5,000 in local funds.

Candidates eyed for police chief

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Mayor Ralph J. Perk is now including a black police captain in the list of candidates for the job of fired Police Chief Lloyd F. Garey.
Perk said this weekend he is considering all 27 police captains for the job. The list previously was limited to inspectors and deputy inspectors.
Garey was fired May 28.

'Displaced homemaker' measure eyed in Ohio General Assembly

By TOM DIEMER

Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Women's rights advocates are pressing for action on several bills in the Ohio legislature, including one to aid a minority group within their own ranks — "displaced homemakers."

A displaced homemaker is defined as

Strip mine law set for signature

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The nation's strip miners, eager to harvest vast fields of coal just below the earth's surface, will soon be controlled by tough federal environmental laws.

But environmental controls aren't new to Pennsylvania, where 39.7 million tons, or 10 per cent of the nation's surface-mined bituminous coal was produced last year.

Federal legislation, which will become effective with President Carter's expected signature, will require strip miners to fully restore the land and return excavated areas to the approximate original contour.

That's already being done in Pennsylvania, which passed its first contour mining provision in 1963.

"It was a good law. It is a good law," said William Guckert, director of Pennsylvania's Bureau of Mine Reclamation.

"Today, it's altogether different than it was 25 years ago. We don't have one showcase area, we have hundreds."

Even some coal producers agree. "It's changed the method of mining," says Jack Hellman, president of C&K Coal Co., which dug five million tons of unprocessed coal last year, making it the largest strip mining operation in the state.

"We now mine with the thought of restoring. Where mining ends and restoration begins is a fine line. I think it works very well in Pennsylvania."

But Bill Harger, president of the Sunbeam Coal Co. in Somerset County, says reclamation required by the state law is expensive, particularly for small operators like himself. He has 30 employees and mines about 150,000 tons of coal a year.

"In order to strip and backfill the way we are required, our production has been cut in half and the cost has doubled," Harger said. "It's by the grace of God that coal has gone up in price four times so we're back to where we were 15 years ago," he said.

Storms hit Midwest

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tornadoes and severe thunderstorms continued in the Midwest this morning. Five tornadoes were reported in Wisconsin and two in Indiana. Trees and power lines were generally the items damaged but occasionally a roof was reported to have been misplaced. There were no reports of injuries.

A severe thunderstorm watch was posted early today for portions of Wisconsin, Illinois and Indiana. A tornado watch was in effect for areas of Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

Heavy thunderstorm activity prevailed from the upper Great Lakes into the Tennessee Valley. Some heavy thundershowers developed in the western portions of Nebraska and Kansas and northeastern Colorado.

A number of showers and isolated thundershowers were scattered across the intermountain region. Light showers lingered in northern New England.

Early morning temperatures around the nation ranged from 90 at Needles, California to 44 at Sawyer Air Force Base, Marquette, Minnesota.

"an individual who is 35 years of age or older, has worked without pay as a homemaker for his or her family, is not gainfully employed, is likely to have difficulty finding employment and is not receiving child support."

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Virginia Aveni, D-17 Lyndhurst, would set up a pilot program at Cuyahoga Community College to offer education, training, counseling and employment services.

"Many of these people have the skills necessary for obtaining a job and do not have the recognition of their marketable value," Mrs. Aveni said.

The legislation and a second bill sponsored by Mrs. Aveni are in the Rules Committee, one step away from a vote by the full House membership.

In her other bill, the suburban Cleveland lawmaker wants to set the marriage without consent age at 18 for both sexes. In present law, men may marry at 16, but women are restricted until they reach 18.

The legislation would also assure that women who choose to keep their maiden names after marriage would not be disenfranchised by registration procedures at inflexible county election boards.

In addition, the measure changes most of the male-only references in the Ohio Revised Code—the state's lawbook—to his or her references.

Two rather complicated Senate bills, meanwhile, are mired in subcommittee. But both were authored by Sen. Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, a legislator with a knack for getting things done.

A judiciary subcommittee— Miss

Valiquette is chairwoman of the full committee—is studying a bill designed to make it easier for courts to enforce child support payments.

The bill was on the verge of being recommended for passage by the entire Senate, when it was stalled by disputes over legal technicalities.

Even more difficult is legislation in a commerce and labor subcommittee that would abolish work rules which differentiate between male and female roles. The bill would also revise a number of other work rules concerning rest periods, lunch breaks and lifting of weights.

But its main sticking point is a proposal to ban employers from forcing employees to work overtime. That provision has met heavy opposition and is likely to be watered down or removed before the bill makes any progress in the legislature.

Mrs. Aveni has six female colleagues in the House, four of them Republicans. Miss Valiquette is the only woman senator. There is no organized women's caucus in the General Assembly.

AIRPORT NEWS

— BOB FORREST —

By SANDY WOODMANSEE

At the last meeting of the pilots association, Everette Woodmansee of Sabina was honored by receiving "gold wings" presented to him by Joel "Cat" Catron, president and founder of the World Wings organization.

Woodmansee received his pin for having soloed an aircraft 50 years ago. He started his flight training at Al Johnson's Flying School at Dayton and soloed in a Curtiss JN4D "Jenny", then purchased an OX5 Travelair bi plane and proceeded to fly to Macon, Georgia where he barnstormed all winter. He received his commercial pilot's license No. 2899 while there. This number is somewhat significant because in those days, licenses were numbered in order given - today social security numbers are used. In April 1928 land was rented adjacent to the Fayette County Fairgrounds where the freeway interchange is now.

For two summers thereafter, he piloted many people on their first aircraft ride and then continued his flying at Sabina Airport. Woodmansee agrees that there have been many changes in aviation since he began flying fifty years ago and he's very proud of his new "wings".

The next association meeting will be held on June 9 at the airport at 7 p.m. Thursday. Everyone is urged to attend as this is the last major meeting before the air show on June 26 and many details need to be finalized. There will be more than thirteen acts beginning at 1 p.m. that day featuring Harold Johnson and the King's Island Air Show. He will be flying in his three Wacos and there will be rides available after the show in these open cockpit biplanes. Rides will also be available in conventional aircraft as well as in the helicopter and aerobatic aircraft. Norman Crabtree, director of the division of aviation for the state, will be the master of ceremonies. Breakfast begins at 8 a.m., lunch at 11 a.m. There will be a $1 per car donation asked for parking and all proceeds will be put toward airport improvements. So come on out on June 26, bring the family and spend an exciting day with us. Watch your newspaper for further details.

Corporate aircraft in have been two Grumman Gulfstream I's belonging to Armo Steel and Owens-Corning Fiberglas respectively and Moorman Mfg's Cessna Golden Eagle stopped in for fuel. Whit Wyatt and Don Lange have received their private pilot's licenses. Whit took his wife Barbara and children Wes and Amy for a ride shortly after receiving his license. Don and Jayne Lange have been enjoying weekend excursions since he's received his license. Greg Willard recently soloed in the helicopter, Roy Bailey has soloed and John Stevenson received his Commercial rating in the helicopter. Congratulations to all of you.

Mob violence controlled in Chicago

CHICAGO (AP) — Officials have turned aside criticism from leaders of the Hispanic community who said police overreacted in a Puerto Rican Independence Day disturbance on the Northwest side that left two persons dead and more than 100 injured.

Witnesses said the six-hour disturbance that included looting, street fights and store fires began Saturday after two policemen went into Humboldt Park to break up a dispute between members of two rival gangs.

Police Supt. James Rochford said Sunday that officers were threatened by a "kneeling gunman" and that an "exchange of gunfire" resulted.

Rochford said he would not be able to tell who shot whom until ballistics tests have been completed, but he said the policemen did not intentionally shoot into the crowd.

Early reports indicated that one man was attempting to shoot at a police officer, missed but hit another man in the park.

Youth Activities

STAUNTON STITCH AND STIR
The Staunton Stitch and Stir 4-H Club held its sixth meeting in the home of Stephanie Garland. The club began by singing "Juicy Orange", "An Austrian", and "Plant a Watermelon on the Top of My Grave". Then Vice President, Miranda Haines called the meeting to order. Amy Copas led the pledges. Kitty Pero, secretary, gave the roll call and it was answered by telling what exam each member was most afraid of. In the absence of the treasurer, Emily Engle gave the treasurer's report and collected the dues.

Dedee Pero gave a health report on "What to do about Sinus Trouble". The club was reminded that the tour of COSI and German Village would be June 15. The members are to meet at the Pero's at 9:00 and bring a sack lunch. 4-H camp was briefly discussed. Each member told what work had been done on projects.

The meeting was adjourned and refreshments were served. The next meeting will be June 9th in the home of Emily Engle. Amy Copas will help serve refreshments.

Weekend collisions kill 13 in state

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two double fatalities left Ohio's weekend traffic death count to 13, according to the highway patrol.

An Ottawa couple was killed Sunday in a collision with a train in Putnam County, and two others were killed Saturday in a Cincinnati mishap.

The Highway Patrol keeps its tabulation of weekend traffic fatalities from 6 p.m. Friday through midnight Sunday.

NEW CARLISLE — Sarah M. Coy,

Seychelles president thrown out

VICTORIA, Seychelles (AP) — Leftist Prime Minister Albert Rene ousted playboy President James R. Mancham while Mancham was in London and announced he would make the tiny Indian ocean nation "free of capitalists and foreign countries."

Mancham, 37, who took office in June 1976 when Britain gave the 86 islands and their 60,000 people independence, said he would ask the United Nations and African states "who stand for stability" to help him regain his office.

He charged that the coup Sunday had the "active agreement and connivance of the Soviet government and is part and parcel of the Soviet policy of controlling the Indian Ocean."

Informed sources said 200 armed men launched the coup at 2 a.m. with an attack on a police barracks in which two policemen were killed. The rebels seized arms, took over the government radio station and the airport and by dawn controlled the streets of Victoria.

A radio broadcast reported that Rene had assumed the presidency, suspended the constitution and the 25-seat National Assembly and would hold new elections, probably in 1979.

The rebels arrested Chief Justice A.J. O'Brien Quinn, an Irishman, and the five Britons who were the government's top police officers because they opposed the coup. They and their families were put aboard an Air France plane for Paris Sunday night.

An unsigned cable from Victoria to The Associated Press in London said Mancham was deposed because he had become a globe-trotting "dictator" who "adopted a style of life which involves lavish spending" and didn't stay in the islands more than three weeks at a time.

Southerners get laugh on Lincoln

VICKSBURG, Miss. (AP) — A few staunch Southerners have had the last laugh, they say, in a post-Civil War rivalry.

While moving a statue of Confederate President Jefferson Davis at the Vicksburg National Military Park, one of the workers placed a Lincoln penny, face up, in the spot where one of Davis' feet would rest.

"Which foot?" someone asked workman Gordon Cotton.

He refused to answer. "You want some Yankee to come down here and chisel the heel off?"

Newly-formed handicapped coalition holds first meet

The Fayette County Coalition for Handicapped recently held its first meeting in the Washington Senior High School cafeteria. Twenty persons attended the two-hour meeting.

Mrs. Diane Berger, personal advocacy program coordinator from Circleville, discussed methods of solving problems of handicapped persons in the Washington C.H. area.

Members of the newly-formed coalition also discussed public awareness, wheelchair confinement, better access to stores, office buildings and parking problems. Increasing the number of deaf interpreters was also discussed by Janet Duvall, president of the DEAF organization in Fayette County.

Pearl Bennett, a polio victim who spearheaded the formation of the handicapped coalition, was the featured speaker for the first meeting.

Bennett openly discussed his handicaps and said that handicapped persons should set goals for themselves.

The next meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, June 24 in the Washington Senior High School. Daniel L. Colnan, state director for the White House Conference for Handicapped Individuals, will be the featured speaker for the program.

For college swine breeding program

Local producers donate seven prize hogs to Southern State

WILMINGTON, Ohio — The Southern State College agricultural department recently obtained from the herd of Andrews and Baughn, Fayette County hog producers, seven gilts and a boar to initiate its swine breeding program.

The Fayette County hog producers donated three registered Yorkshire gilts, four registered Hampshire gilts and a registered Hampshire boar.

Dale Stokes, chairman of Southern State College's agriculture department, said, "the hogs will be incorporated into Southern State's agricultural program to serve as a working laboratory for instructional purposes." Stokes said, "students attending Southern State will be able to work with the swine enterprise and to gain first-hand experiences in swine feeding, breeding and management."

The swine enterprise will further allow the teaching of technical skills, which include ear-notching, iron injections, clipping needle teeth, castrating, and similar approved practices of farrowing management. Other emphasis will be placed on gilt selection, herd health programs, swine judging and experimentation with the techniques of artificial insemination in swine.

"Periodic field trips through surrounding farms will be a vital part of the total learning experience," Stokes said.

The Southern State College agriculture department recognizes the need for such a swine program as the area it serves is located in a large swine producing region.

Clinton County is the largest hog producing county in Ohio, with a number of hogs and pigs on farms, being of 83,500 head. Annual receipts for the Clinton County swine industry are $15,305,000 which accounts for 75 per cent of its total farm cash income.

Highland County has a hog population of 49,300 head, and Fayette County supports 63,700 hogs. Each of these counties receive 27 per cent of the total annual farm income from the swine industry.

Brown County's Swine production brings $3,153,000 annually to farmers, which is 13 per cent of the total farm income for the year.

There are over 11,400 hogs in Adams County and the annual farm income grosses $1,700,000.

"These figures reinforce our total planning to include swine production in our agriculture curriculum. We are especially indebted to Charles Andrews for his generosity in getting us started," Stokes added.

Wall Street not luring investors

By JOHN CUNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — William Batten, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, may be correct when he says "I believe there are a great many people out there with investable funds ...

Yes, they have the funds. Savings and loans are loaded with deposits. The big commercial banks are making greater efforts to share in the lode. And families are sinking money into homes, new and existing, as they never have before.

But they're not investing the money in the stock market. Individual participation is down to roughly 30 per cent of the Big Board's volume. And mutual funds continue to fight high redemptions.

And so, the second half of Batten's statement, made several months ago when he embarked on a program to lure back to the market the prodigal individual investor, has hardly come true as yet. It reads:

"... Who are ready to respond to reasonable incentives to put some of their savings into stocks ..."

Potential investors continue to be savers instead. They search for the guaranteed fixed return provided by interest rather than the riskier but potentially larger return that stocks might provide.

Reasonable incentives? Many solid companies are selling below their book value. The price earnings ratio of the Dow Jones industrial average is about 9.5 or less, compared with nearly 12 a year ago and 16 to 18 a decade ago.

The incentives are there, but they aren't being exercised.

One mutual fund conducted a survey to determine what was done with the money shareholders obtained by redeeming their holdings. The largest percentage, 24, said they deposited the funds in savings accounts.

Why the conservative attitude?

Batten expressed the view that "Many of them simply want some assurance that the government won't penalize them with heavy taxes if they happen to make some money on their investments."

But there is more to it than that.

Institutional activity, now accounting for about 70 per cent of dollar volume on the NYSE, most likely has a lot to do with the reluctance to invest in stocks.

Those institutions are felt by individuals to be unfair competition, because of their market-moving power, their special research, their ability to move fast on news the public might not receive until hours later.

Indecisiveness about the economy, of course, is a factor. When savers can see far ahead more of them than now tend to become investors. But they cannot see, and it's all understandable when you read the news these days.

Even business, which has so much to gain from moving ahead, marks time while worrying itself into a lather about the uncertainties of interest rates, taxes, costs, prices, availability of commodities, foreign competition and more.

With business exhibiting such a lack of daring, can the investor be blamed for showing his caution? Without promise, there are no investments, and the equity markets don't seem to be promising much.

By contrast, fixed incomes aren't promises, but guarantees.

13-ton rock ends school vandalism

BLOOMFIELD, Conn. (AP) — A 13-ton rock may have solved Bloomfield High School's graffiti problems, school officials say.

The rock, which cost $200, was installed in front of the school in an attempt to divert unsolicited student artwork from corridor walls.

Principal Louis Schiavone says the rock has worked better than his wildest expectations.

"There's not a mark on the building, not even a chalk mark," he said. Another official added that vandalism had been cut 90 per cent.

Students cover the rock with their writings but create more space by painting over them. So far the rock has been painted maroon and silver.

4-H club roundup

By JACK SOMMERS

County Extension Agent, 4-H

A new and exciting adventure for youth 14-19 years is being made available to Fayette County 4-H'ers enrolled in 4-H livestock projects.

This coeducational activity, an Area Livestock Project Camp, will be held June 20, 21, and 22 at Wilmington College and Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School in Clinton County.

Because of the nature of the camp, enrollment is limited to 60 participants and all are enrolled on a first come, first serve, basis. Camp applications are available from 4-H Club Advisors and the Extension Office. June 10 is the last day to register.

The teens involved in the program will be taught to sharpen knives and then will be given instructions on meat cutting at the Laurel Oaks meat lab. All persons will cut their own pork loin, freeze and take their cuts home with them.

Other activities include classes on animal reproduction by studying beef reproductive tracts; artificial insemination of beef and swine; a look at total herd health, including an autopsy of a pig; classes on feeding, nutrition; and current marketing trends.

Moluccans release 2 hostages

GRONINGEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Two pregnant women released by South Moluccan terrorists after 13 days captivity said today that the other 53 hostages aboard a train in northern Holland are in good condition despite "very great psychological pressure."

"In general, the hostages are being treated correctly by the Moluccans," said Anne Brouwer-Korf, 31, in a statement read to reporters before she and 25-year-old Nelleke Ellenbroek-Prinsen left the Groningen University Clinic with their husbands.

Mrs. Ellenbroek, who is five months pregnant, and Mrs. Brouwer, who is two months pregnant, were freed Sunday. But Justice Minister Andreas van Agt said there is no indication that release is near for the other hostages aboard the train near Assen or four others held in a schoolhouse.

Both women looked relaxed and rested after their night in the hospital, where Mrs. Brouwer is employed in the personnel department. They were released from the hospital after examinations by a physician and a psychiatrist.

Van Agt said a six-hour mediation meeting Saturday between the militants on the train and two leaders of the South Moluccan community made little progress, and a second meeting has not been fixed.

"I don't yet see any reason to be optimistic that it will all soon be over," he said.

Classes will also include general livestock judging; a look at agricultural careers; and cutting of a half beef - showing economics behind the meat counter. These are just a few of the exciting activities available.

In addition, an evening of fun and recreation is planned. This includes access to all Wilmington College recreational facilities, including the indoor pool. Housing will be in the Wilmington College dormitories.

This event is sponsored by the Ohio

Cooperative Extension Service of Ohio State University. Personnel will include instructors from the Veterinary Science Department, Animal Science Department, County and Area Extension Agents of The Ohio State University and representatives from Commercial Livestock Industry.

If you would like to attend or would like additional information, contact Jack Sommers, County 4-H Extension Agent at 335-1150 or stop in at 319 S. Fayette St.

Fire hero seeks return to anonymity

CINCINNATI (AP) — Before the Memorial Day weekend the 18-year-old hero of the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire was "just plain ol' Walter Bailey." Now Bailey is trying to get out of the public eye.
Bailey, a busboy who grabbed a microphone to alert a show crowd minutes before the May 28 blaze killed at least 161 persons, fled his Alexandria, Ky., home over the weekend to escape publicity for a week.
His mother said he is relaxing at a private Midwest resort under an assumed name.
Before leaving, Bailey told a reporter he was reluctant to discuss the tragedy.
"I just wish this all would die down," said Bailey, who has been inundated with job offers, financial assistance and adulation.
"He thinks enough has been said about him and not enough about others who saved lives," said his mother, Janie Hogle.
"He can't stand to talk about it anymore. The media doesn't realize he's become ashamed of it," said the widowed mother of five.
Bailey's fast action is credited with saving hundreds of lives by warning and then leading patrons to exits from the Cabaret Room, where more than 900 persons crowded into a theater to see entertainer John Davidson.
He later returned to the room, which was engulfed in flames, pulled out persons overcome by deadly smoke and provided life-saving efforts.

Bath man shot while playing golf

AKRON (AP) — A Bath man was shot in the leg Saturday while he played golf on the 15th fairway at Fairlawn Country Club in Akron.
The victim was identified as Ott Scarponi, 51, a former president of the country club.
Police say they have no idea who shot Scarponi, but other members of Scarponi's golfing foursome attributed the shooting to a prank by passersby on a nearby road.

Walton wins MVP trophy

Trail Blazers win NBA championship

PORTLAND (AP) — The Pacific Northwest is known for rain and clean air. Now, it's also known for the best basketball played anywhere.

The Portland Trail Blazers, who until this year had never had a winning season, claimed the National Basketball Association title Sunday with a hair-raising 109-107 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers.

"We had a whole lot of fun," grinned Blazer team captain Bill Walton, who was named the series' Most Valuable Player after he scored 20 points, grabbed 23 rebounds and blocked eight shots in the victory. "I feel good all over."

When the buzzer sounded, Walton, who suffered through two injury-plagued seasons and considerable criticism before leading his team to this championship, ripped the No. 32 jersey from his back and hurled it into the crowd.

The Blazers had dropped the first two games of the best-of-seven championship series, then won four in a row to win the title. Sunday's contest was the only game that was close.

Portland led by as many as 15 points, but the Sixers repeatedly challenged the Blazers. They nearly caught them at the finish.

Joe Bryant's two free throws with 51 seconds left sliced the Portland lead to 108-105. Portland's Maurice Lucas sank one of two free throws with 27 seconds to make it a four-point game.

George McGinnis, whose shooting touch returned for the final game, sank a 20-footer to slice the lead to 109-107 with 18 seconds to go. Then McGinnis tied up Portland's Bob Gross and controlled the subsequent jump ball.

The Sixers got three shots in the final eight seconds, but none found its target. The first was by Julius Erving, who led all scorers with 40 points, but his 18-footer bounced off the rim. Lloyd Free grabbed the rebound, but his shot was blocked by Walton.

McGinnis grabbed the ball and fired from 12 feet, but the shot was short. Walton tipped the rebound to Por-land's Johnny Davis and the game was over.

The crowd of 12,951 swamped the court in DeMille epic, and the immediate post-game hysteria was tame compared with the celebration that followed downtown. A parade through downtown was planned for noon today.

"The sun was shining in Portland. I thought that was a good omen," said exhausted Philadelphia Coach Gene Shue. "It was a tough game."

The tenseness of the game evaporated in the euphoria of the post-game Portland dressing room, where guard Dave Twardzik jokingly dumped beer down the shorts of Walton and Lionel Hollins as they were being interviewed on television.

Champagne flowed freely and so did compliments.

"I'm a very good friend of everybody on this team," Gross said. "I can say anything I want to about any of them. You can't say that about very many teams."

"They play team ball, unselfish ball. They are the embodiment of the best in professional basketball," said championed-tench team owner Larry Weinberg.

"These guys have played great all season," said the usually reserved Walton. The big Portland center normally avoids post-game interviews, but he talked at length after the game.

"In my opinion," he said, "they (the Sixers) lost because they played a better team. I don't mean to take anything away from them. They're a fine team. I just think they're a better one."

"This was one of the best games I've ever played in," Walton said. "A lot of guys played well and it was exciting."

Walton won a new car from Sport magazine when a panel of writers selected him MVP. Blazer Coach Jack Ramsay couldn't argue with the choice.

"I've never coached a better player. I've never coached a better competitor. I've never coached a better player than Bill Walton," said Ramsay.

While Erving grabbed his usual place in the spotlight by sinking 17 of 29 field goal tries from a variety of angles, Gross — the man who was guarding him — hit 12 of 16 field goal attempts and grabbed five timely offensive rebounds.

Gross wound up with 24 points, tops for the Blazers, and he said after the game that Erving relaxed on defense and became tired because he played nearly the entire game.

"I really don't think he was concentrating on me on defense," Gross said, "and there's no way he can run up and down the court with me for 48 minutes and not get tired."

In the final game, it was the play of Portland's guards — particularly Hollins — and the team's rugged superiority on the backboards that made the difference.

Hollins scored 20 points, including several key baskets in the final quarter. Portland out-rebounded the Sixers, 59-47.

Still, Philadelphia needed just one basket at the end to send the game into overtime.

"We almost did it," said McGinnis, who hit 12 of 23 field goal attempts, scored 28 points and grabbed 16 rebounds. "We fought back. It was a great ball game, a great finish, the best game of the series."

But, he added, "We would have liked to see the guards get more involved."

Philadelphia guard Doug Collins, the team's second-leading scorer through the playoffs, hit just 3-of-9 from the field for six points. Lloyd Free, who came off the bench to replace Collins, was 0-for-6 from the field.

When NBA Commissioner Lawrence O'Brien presented the championship trophy, Ramsay had the entire Portland team come into the interview room to accept it.

"This is the finest team I've ever coached," Ramsay said. "They are the finest people I've ever coached. If we hadn't won it, I'd have felt the same way."

PICKING OUT A GOOD ONE — Dennis Combs of Post 25 picks out a good pitch in yesterday's loss to Hillsboro Post 129 in nine innings. Combs got one of only five hits off Hillsboro's Jeff Conner and the Washington Legionnaires lost, 6-3. The second game of the scheduled twin-bill was wiped out by rain.

Second game washed away

Post 25 drops nine inning contest to Hillsboro, 6-3

The Post 25 baseball team dropped an extra-inning game to Hillsboro Post 129 yesterday in a rain-shortened doubleheader.

The Washington Legionnaires were beaten 6-3 in the first game and then watched a thundershower wipe out the nightcap. The first game went nine innings.

Jeff Conner was on the mound for Hillsboro and he went the distance to record the win. Conner, who is a Western Brown High School product had control problems and issued seven walks in the contest.

But, after giving up two runs in the first four innings, he settled down to allow just one more in the remaining five.

He gave up just two earned runs while scattering five hits. He also struck out nine Post 25 hitters.

The loss was pinned on the ace of Ron Helmick's staff, Jeff Elliott. Elliott, who with Shawn Riley make the Post 25 pitching staff one of the best, tired in the ninth and gave up the final three runs.

Elliott pitched scoreless baseball until the fifth inning. Then, leading 3-2, he allowed another run in the top of the seventh to send the game into extra innings.

He gave up 12 hits in the contest and struck out four. Elliott did not allow a walk in the game.

Extra base hits were at a premium as only three of the 17 hits the two teams combined for were of the extra base variety.

Gary Larimer of Hillsboro had a double while Terry Hauke and Elliott each cracked a home run for their respective teams.

Post 25 jumped out with a 1-0 lead in the first innings and then increased it to 2-0 in the fourth.

Post 129 came back with single runs in the fifth and sixth to tie the game, but Washington scored what seemed to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth.

But, Hillsboro touched Elliott for a run in the top of the seventh to tie the score and then went on to score three times in the top of the ninth to win the game.

Mark Tubbs, of Post 25 led the team with two of the five hits. Larimer led Hillsboro with a trio of safeties.

Two homers, five RBI's

Sixth spot agrees with Bench

CINCINNATI (AP) — Forget Johnny Bench's .227 batting average. He's hitting a ton.

"Hitting .300 has never been a goal of mine. I'd much rather hit .234 with men on base, than .280 without anybody on base," the Cincinnati slugger said Sunday after driving in five runs in a 14-4 rout of the Houston Astros.

The oft-injured Reds catcher announced Sunday he is mounting a chase after Ron Cey of Los Angeles, the major leagues' runaway leader in run batted in.

"There is no reason I can't make a run at him. I think I can catch him," said Bench, who hit his 10th and 11th home runs of the season.

The three-time National League RBI king is back in the swing of things after "a terrible start" and an off-year in 1976.

The 29-year-old slugger has overtaken teammate George Foster for the club RBI lead with 37, half of his entire output a year ago when he slumped to a career-low 238 batting average.

Cey, the Dodgers' power-hitting third baseman, has 51 RBI in 51 games—a healthy lead over Bench.

But, pointed out Bench, "he's cooled down, as have the Dodgers." Los Angeles holds a 10-game lead over the Reds who have won seven of their last nine games.

Cincinnati opens a three-game road trip against the rejuvenated New York Mets tonight. Pat Zachry, 3-6, is scheduled to face Tom Seaver, 5-3.

Bench has found himself despite a demotion from the cleanup spot.

"It's easier to bat lower in the lineup. In the fourth position, you are under the gun, offensively and defensively. When you are not hitting, you worry about the right pitches to call. Sometimes it's been a distraction to me," said the nine-time All-Star who is nearing the 1,000 RBI plateau. He has 966 in 11-plus seasons.

Bench and Joe Morgan supplied eight runs in the outburst, staking unbeaten Gary Nolan, 4-0, to an 11-0 lead after five innings. Morgan's three-run blast highlighted a five-run first inning.

Victim of the barrage was J.R. Richard, a 20-game winner last year. Now 4-5, he is 3-7 lifetime against the Reds.

Willie Crawford drove in all four runs for the Astros, drilling a run-scoring single to snap Nolan's shutout bid and later tagged Pedro Borbon for a three-run homer.

The Astros hold a 5-2 edge over the Reds and Crawford feels the club has yet to reach its full potential.

Dodgers Hough and puff but still beat Padres, 4-2

By KEN RAPPOPORT

AP Sports Writer

Charlie Hough puffed and he puffed, but he wasn't exactly blowing San Diego batters down. A struggle it was, but the Los Angeles reliever managed to preserve a victory for Doug Rau.

The usually reliable pitcher was uncommonly erratic Sunday, twice walking the bases loaded in the final two innings. But just as he dug himself into holes, he quickly dug himself out to preserve the Dodgers' 4-2 victory over the San Diego Padres.

Hough, for all his wildness, didn't give up a hit while gaining his 15th save of the season.

"What happened to my Hope Diamond?" kidded Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda about his bullpen ace.

Another who's played a major role in getting the Dodgers up front in the National League West is second baseman Dave Lopes. He had a two-run homer Sunday, providing the Dodgers with their eventual winning runs.

In other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds walloped the Houston Astros 14-4, the Montreal Expos whipped the St. Louis Cardinals 7-5, the San Francisco Giants outscored the Atlanta Braves 10-9, the New York Mets beat the Philadelphia Phillies twice, 6-5 and 3-2 and the Pittsburgh Pirates nipped the Chicago Cubs 5-4.

Rau gave up five hits before Hough relieved him. Mike Ivie belted his fifth home run with the bases empty in the fifth inning, giving the Padres a 2-1 lead. But Lopes' two-run homer in the bottom of the fifth put Los Angeles ahead to stay as the Dodgers retained a 10-game lead over Cincinnati in the National League West.

Expos 7, Cardinals 5

Montreal's Sam Mejias slugged a pinch-hit home run to lead off the seventh inning and break a 5-5 tie. Mejias, acquired by the Expos from St. Louis last November, hit his first major league homer pinch-hitting for pitcher Don Stanhouse. Stanhouse got the victory in relief of Santo Alcala.

Giants 10, Braves 9

Bill Madlock smashed a two-run double and Derrel Thomas hit a pair of sacrifice flies as San Francisco took an early seven-run lead and held on to beat Atlanta.

The Giants hammered out an 8-1 lead in the first three innings. But Atlanta jumped into contention with a five-run rally in the seventh, featuring a grand-slam homer by rookie Barry Bonnell, his first homer in the major leagues.

Wins Kemper Open tournament

Putting, wife keys for Weiskopf

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Experience was the key to his victory in the Kemper Open Golf Tournament, Tom Weiskopf said. A regained putting touch brought him through the multiple-man scramble.

But wife Jeanne deserves a large part of the credit, too.

"I was really down after my disappointing, discouraging finish in the Memorial Tournament in my home town," Weiskopf said Sunday after a final-round 70 had broken a two-year victory drought.

"I just wanted to get away from tournament golf for a while. I hadn't won in two years. I was playing bad. It wasn't any fun. I was confused and angry. I didn't know what to do."

"I just wanted to get away for a while and not play and try to get things worked out."

"My wife told me I was like a rookie trying to win his first one. She told me I had to stick with it. She said I was the only one who could make it happen, and I couldn't make it happen if I wasn't playing."

"So I went on to Atlanta." He shot a nine-birdie 65 in the last round at Atlanta and, only after that round, decided to play in the Kemper. That decision — and his critical play on the par-five holes — led to a 277 total, 11 under par, his third victory in the Kemper and $50,000 from the total purse of $250,000.

And it prompted him to enter this week's Danny Thomas-Memphis Classic. He filed his entry moments after posting his 12th career victory and only moments before the deadline.

Weiskopf had to birdie the par-five ninth hole to remain in a tie with non-winners George Burns and Bill Rogers halfway through the final round. He took sole control with another birdie on the par-five 10th and locked it up with a one-putt par on the par-five 15th, where Burns made bogey from a fairway bunker. That put Tom three in front with three to play.

Little League action

Several games were played in Little League last week. On Thursday night, Craigs beat Helfrichs, 20-14, while County Bank whipped K of C, 25-8.

Friday evening saw the Eagles edge Roller Haven, 19-15, and the Elks outlast Sagars, 11-9.

Saturday afternoon had County Bank over Helfrichs, 21-7.

Opening lead — ace of diamonds.

There are players who are always pointing out to partner how he could have made a contract he failed to make. Some of these uninvited criticisms are based strictly on hindsight; anyone can pick a winner after the race is over. But sometimes the criticism is justified and can be logically supported.

Consider this deal from a world championship match between Italy and the United States. The U.S. declarer got to four spades doubled and West led the ace of diamonds, followed by the six of hearts.

Declarer finessed, losing to the king of hearts, and East returned a trump. There was no way for South to escape two trump losers and he eventually went down one.

But South should have made the contract! It was not really difficult for declarer to read how the unseen cards were apt to be divided. The bidding had been very illuminating. West's double of four spades indicated a trump holding that was likely to consist of K-10-x-x, and East's vulnerable two diamond bid almost certainly marked him with the king of hearts.

Declarer therefore should have played dummy's ace of hearts at trick two, followed by the A-K of clubs and a club ruff in dummy. Then a diamond ruff, a club ruff and another diamond ruff would have left South with the A-Q-J-9 of trumps and ten of hearts, while West at this point would have the K-10-4-2 of trumps and three of hearts.

South exits with the ten of hearts. East takes the king, but, whatever he returns, declarer plays the jack of trumps on it. If West wins with the king, he must lead to South's A-Q-9; if West ducks the jack, South simply plays the queen of spades to endplay West. Either way, declarer makes the contract.

Town meets get some good results

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The resurgence of town meetings during the past two years has produced some positive results, participants in the local assemblies agreed Saturday.

Nearly 200 persons representing 72 town meetings held around Ohio met here to compare results.

"Town meetings give the common man a vehicle to get his voice heard," said Andrew Batchelor, vice president of Anchor-Hocking Corp. in Lancaster.

Batchelor said a Lancaster Town Meeting had given impetus to an 11-year effort to build a public library, and "for the first time, brought together Fairfield County's 11 mayors, who now know each other and discuss common problems."

Another result, Batchelor said, was Ohio University's Lancaster branch becoming more of a cultural center for the city and county by holding lectures, plays and concerts for the community.

Mayor Steve Smith of London said a Town Meeting there had sparked action toward establishing a large recreation center in the city for all of Madison County.

Smith said action is also under way for beautifying and revitalizing downtown London, and making a survey to determine community wants and interests.

Robert Booher of the Institute of Cultural Affairs in Cincinnati said the success of the town meetings is an indication that "people have decided to leave the cynicism of the 70s behind and to pick up responsibility for their communities."

Growing out of the old-time town meetings recreated during last year's American Revolution Bicentennial observances, more than 1,000 town meetings have been held in the nation.

Booher explained that town meetings consist of 100 to 400 persons gathered for a one-day workshop to discuss current issues and problems and their causes, and to propose solutions.

Death of pair said from fumes

CINCINNATI (AP) — Authorities are awaiting autopsy results to determine the cause of death of a young man and a 15-year-old girl in Colerain Township.

The Hamilton County Sheriff's Patrol says Lance Jessup, 21, and Traci Tarter were found dead Saturday morning, slumped over the front seat of Jessup's car parked in front of the girl's home. The car's engine was running.

Authorities said they suspect carbon monoxide poisoning. Investigating officers say there was no evidence of foul play.

Coke teamsters seeking contract

AKRON (AP) — Teamsters Union members who work for Coca-Cola Bottling Co. in Akron are continuing to work without a contract on a day-to-day basis while they attempt to negotiate with company officials.

A spokesman said members of Local 24 turned down a contract offer Saturday by a vote of 78-2 because they were dissatisfied with the company's cost-of-living offer.

Police report other injury accidents

Two hurt in rural auto crash

A 56-year-old Pickaway County woman was released from a Columbus hospital Monday morning after being treated for injuries sustained in a two-car crash at the intersection of U.S. 22 and the Old Chillicothe Road on Sunday afternoon.

Mary E. Nelson of Atlanta suffered several fractures in the mishap. She was taken to Fayette County Memorial Hospital and then transferred to Riverside Hospital in Columbus.

Mrs. Nelson's husband, Alfred, was also injured in the mishap. He was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital on Sunday.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported that a car driven by Warner M. Turner, 38, of 438 Highland Ave., pulled in front of the Nelson auto. Alfred Nelson, 64, was driving his auto. Turner was cited for improper turning.

A two-year-old Washington C.H. boy was injured when he fell from a moving car Saturday night at the intersection of Delaware Street and Gibbs Avenue.

Timothy Longberry, 515 Fifth St., apparently hit the door latch of the car and fell to the pavement. He was treated and released from Fayette County Memorial Hospital. Pamela S. Angeletti, 23, of 629 E. Paint St., was driving the auto at the time of the accident, the report stated.

City police officers also reported an injury-accident shortly before 1 p.m. Saturday.

Cars driven by John W. Briggs, 77, of 331 Western Ave., and Pauline D. Sanders, 42, of 8243 Post Road, collided at the intersection of E. Paint and Wilson streets.

Briggs was treated for a lacerated forehead at Fayette County Memorial Hospital and Mrs. Sanders reported an injured left knee.

Briggs was cited for failure to yield the right of way.

Police officers also investigated a three-car mishap at the intersection of Court and North streets Sunday afternoon.

A car driven by Terry L. Stapleton, 20, of 2414 Bogus Road, reportedly pulled into the path of a car driven by Jeffery N. Tuvell, 21, of 509 Damon Drive. The two cars collided and the Stapleton auto was pushed into a car driven by Roland J. Rees, 23, of 2968 Yeoman Road.

Stapleton was cited for failure to yield the right of way and no injuries were reported.

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department investigated a two-vehicle collision on Ohio 41-S, approximately one mile south of the Miami Trace Road.

A van driven by Danny R. Rowe, 22, Xenia, was pulling into the passing lane to pass a motorcycle. A car driven by Laura B. Conaway, 21, Lyndon, had reportedly already pulled into the passing lane to pass the van when the mishap occurred.

There were no injuries reported and no citations were issued at the scene of the accident.

Firemen check 4 reports

The Washington C.H. Fire Department answered four fire calls over the weekend.

On Saturday evening, Julia Williams, 823 Yeoman Road, reported a grease fire at her residence. Firemen reported that the fire did no damage. Grease on a cook stove had apparently been ignited by a burner.

Lightning prompted to check out the Risch's Drug Store at 202 E. Court St., Sunday afternoon. The lightning struck an air conditioning unit and shorted out an electric plug. There was no fire damage.

Earlier that afternoon, firemen were sent to the Buckeye Mart store at 100 Washington Square when a ballast in an overhead light fixture burned out. There was no fire damage.

Firemen also investigated a corn shock fire at 3291 U.S. 35-SE. The fire was being kept under control by James Groves.

Ugandan says Amin murderer

LONDON (AP) — Uganda's health minister has detected in Britain, and says an estimate that more than 100,000 persons have been killed in his African country since President Idi Amin seized power in 1971 is probably correct.

Henry Kyemba, 37, told the London Sunday Times that he broke with Amin because "it was only a question of time before I was due to be killed."

An aide to the Ugandan president said Sunday in a telephone interview that Kyemba's defection "is no real surprise. After all, if he did dare to return to Uganda, he would have a lot of charges to answer."

Amin, a friend of Kyemba since childhood, accused him of diverting government funds into a "very fat bank account abroad."

Kyemba came to Europe at the head of a Ugandan delegation to a meeting of the World Health Organization in Geneva and did not return home. The Sunday Times, in a copyrighted story, said he did not announce his defection until his family escaped to Kenya with his two small children.

Kyemba asked the British government for political asylum.

The Sunday Times said he told it: "I would not even attempt to dispute the figures in the recent report by the International Commission of Jurists which indicated that more than 100,000 people have been murdered in Uganda since Gen. Amin came to power in 1971.

"It is probably correct, although of course no one knows what the exact figure is. ... Even Amin does not know how many people he has ordered to be executed."

He said those murdered included Dora Bloch, the British-Israeli grandmother who disappeared after the Israeli raid on Entebbe airport last July 24, and Anglican Archbishop Janani Luwum.

"Mrs. Bloch had been murdered to satisfy the president's lust for vengeance," Kyemba added.

War dead honored from nation's past

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — More than a century after the Civil War divided them, Northerners and Southerners joined in the largest Confederate cemetery north of the Mason-Dixon line to honor the 2,260 soldiers buried there.

"We did bind up the nation's wounds," Columbus attorney Earl Morris told about 150 persons who attended a Confederate Memorial Day service at Camp Chase Confederate Cemetery.

"It may well be that it took another war to bring full national unity," Morris said. "But when the descendants of these men who lie here and of their captors—their grandsons and grandnephews from Minnesota and Mississippi, from Vermont and Virginia—died together at Pearl Harbor, in the mountains of Italy, in the Battle of the Bulge and in Iwo Jima, we were, indeed, one nation."

The Southerners' graves are contained in a two-acre plot in west Columbus. The site is all that remains of the old Camp Chase Military Prison, which was the North's largest prisoner-of-war camp.

Salutes honoring the Rebel soldiers were fired by descendants of the 22nd

Virginia and 1st Ohio calvaries dressed in gray and blue.

"We pause today as was first done 80 years ago on June 5, 1896, for a service in their memory," Morris said.

"But we do more than that. We rejoice even as we memorialize that a nation divided when they died is now one, strengthened over the years and today the greatest nation on earth."

Confederate Memorial Day is observed on various days in April and May in some southern states and on June 3, Jefferson Davis' birthday, in others. Here it is observed on the Sunday nearest June 3.

The annual service at Camp Chase is sponsored by the United Daughters of the Confederacy chapter in Columbus.

Although not everyone had roots in the South—even Morris said his ancestors wore Yankee blue uniforms—they all sang "Dixie."

Morris, a former president of the Ohio Bar Association, said Camp Chase Military Prison has become "one of the way stations" in the building of America.
